Book Description

Excerpt from Four Girls at Chautauqua Ruth Erskine smiled. Which question Shall I answer first? What a perfect interrogation point you are, Eurie. My hats never suit, you know; this one was worse than usual. This Velvet is a pretty Shade, isn't it? Am I going to Chautauqua, do you mean? I am sure I don't know. I haven't thought much about it. Do you really suppose it will be worth while? Eurie stamped her foot impatiently. How provoking you are I Haven't thought of it, and here I have been talking and coaxing all the morning. Father thinks it is a wild scheme, of course, and sees no sense in Spending so much money; but I'm going for? All that. I don't have a frolic once in an age, and I have set my heart on this. Just think of living in the woods for two Whole weeks! Camping out, and doing all sorts of wild things. I'm just delighted. Miss Erskine sewed thoughtfully for some seconds, then she said.
